QUARTZ BARRISTERS SEEK TO LEAD THE WAY FOR CHAMBERS

Despite the challenges of the Covid-19 pandemic, Quartz Barristers have recorded over 50% growth due to our agile work practices. Quartz has since appointed marketing executive Martin Croft (above) – a recent marketing MSc graduate from the University of Nottingham. We enjoy working alongside teams of young talent and it's our culture to nurture new ideas and divergent thinking. Martin's addition means that Quartz can continue to evolve, as well as strengthen our core values of empowering change within our legal community.

Quartz Barristers are determined to establish cutting edge practices that are solely focused on sustainability. Our mission is to empower people to resolve legal disputes more easily by using a barrister and our vision is to create an accessible network of legal professionals by using technology and smarter business practices.

In 2016, Quartz Barristers was founded on the vision for better legal services for its customers, barristers and solicitors – an idea where we could place people and communities at the heart of what we do. But not only that, we aspire to make an impact on the legal industry by daring to do things differently. We're focused on creating new pathways for future generations by making legal services more accessible by embracing technology and new business ideas.

We want to lead the way by going beyond industry standards with the ambition to create a more promising and sustainable future.

Paul Wright, the CEO of Quartz Barristers says that “Martin's appointment brings us closer to achieving our vision. His background in branding and marketing affords Quartz and its barristers' new initiatives for promotion, business growth among other strategic development. With new horizons emerging in 2022, we will continue to take our efforts to the next level.

Our values are at the core of our organisation's effort. As Quartz continues to grow its network, we're embracing new ways of working with those who share our values in empowering change. Quartz Barristers are excited to be working with like-minded solicitors, barristers and other legal professionals. By being stronger together, we seek to create positive change and opportunities for everyone.
